Categorical awards by Healthy city functions

Vision of Healthy Taiwan achieved through urban governance in local governments and the establishment of city profiles

Conclusions

- 1. Local governments created a diverse set of priorities regarding health issues, reflecting the different states of economic development, physical environments, political/administrative systems, and social and cultural norms of the cities involved.
- 2. In 2009, the Central government set up the Taiwan Healthy Cities Awards to select outstanding organizations to serve as a positive model and to encourage mutual learning opportunities resulting in policy influence at city levels. Furthermore, the Department of Health believed that awards for cities could act as incentives to sustained political commitment.
